Attorney General Griffin Secures $100K Grant to Fight Human Trafficking

Griffin: 'We are the most effective in our fight against international human trafficking right here in Arkansas when we are maximizing relationships, sharing information, and learning best practices'

LITTLE ROCK – Attorney General Tim Griffin issued the following statement announcing a grant from the Attorney General Alliance to combat human trafficking in Arkansas:

“I recently attended a bipartisan attorney general conference in Rome and Vatican City (at no cost to taxpayers) organized by the Attorney General Alliance focused on fighting human trafficking around the world. While there I was able to secure a $100,000 grant to help the State address these horrible crimes, and I met a number of experts who specialize in combating illicit massage parlors and one with extensive knowledge of the Andrew Tate case. I have invited some of these experts to conduct training and share their insights with us in Arkansas.

“We are the most effective in our fight against international human trafficking right here in Arkansas when we are maximizing relationships, sharing information, and learning best practices.”
